A long time ago, a cat and a mouse wanted to live and keep the house together. They prepared a pot of fat for the winter and place it in the corner of the church.

One day the cat told the mouse, "Listen, my cousin invited me to be her first son's godfather." "Go ahead," said the mouse. The cat went back home in the evening.

"You must have a good time there. What is the child's name?" said the mouse. "Top off," answered the cat.

Soon the cat told the mouse, "My cousin asked me to be her second son's godfather again."

The mouse asked, "What is the child's name this time?" "Half-gone," answered the cat.

Before long the cat told the mouse, "My cousin asked me to be her third son's godfather. Will you please help me once again?" "Though the names of the children are strange, it's fine. Go!" said the mouse.

When the cat came back, the mouse asked, "What is the third son's name this time?" "All-Gone," answered the cat.

When winter came, the mouse said to the cat, "Let's go find the pot of fat." When they got there, nothing was in the pot. "Now I see!" said the mouse. "You ate the top of the fat when you said your cousin's son's name was Top-Off, then it was Half-gone, and then..." before the mouse said the last word, the cat jumped onto the mouse and ate it.
