(A)

Trash is becoming a serious problem on land and in the ocean, too. The world's oceans are quickly filled with trash nowadays. Many people are trying to fix this. Two people working to clean the oceans are Australians—Andrew Turton and Pete Ceglinski. These two surfers have come up with the Seabin, which can help clean up oceans.

The Seabin is a floating bucket that sits in the water and sucks (吸) in things around it. Each Seabin is connected to the land where its pump rests. The Seabin sucks in water as well as trash. Inside each Seabin is a net which can be taken out and cleaned. Clean water is then pumped back out into the ocean. Seabins can even collect oil and detergent (清潔劑) which is found in the water.

Turton's love for the water is what led him to create the Seabin. While surfing in the ocean, he saw lots of garbage. Turton wanted to clean up the garbage, and at around the same time, he met Ceglinski, who worked as a designer. Together, they quit their jobs and created the Seabin in order to clean up oceans around the world. Both of them hope to live in a world without the need of Seabins one day.

31. Which ISN'T the feature of the Seabin?
 (A) The Seabin looks like a straw on the water.
 (B) The Seabin can't work by itself without electricity.
 (C) The net inside the Seabin can be reused.
 (D) The Seabin can suck in garbage besides oil and detergent.

32. Which is true?
 (A) At first, the Seabin was used for making money.
 (B) The Seabin not only works on the land but also in the water .
 (C) The Seabin can only suck in trash.
 (D) Both of Andrew Turton and Pete Ceglinski gave up their jobs for making oceans clean.

(B)

Many people place lots of importance on exercising and eating right. Both of these things are very good, but it's important to train your brain, too. Keeping your brain active can help with creating new brain cells and new connections between those cells. This means you'll have a better memory and be able to think faster.

Neurobics, developed by Dr. Lawrence Katz in 1988, is one way to exercise your brain. It's all about changing up simple everyday tasks. For example, you can brush your teeth with your other hand or take a shower with your eyes closed. There are other ways you can do to support brain health as well. Avoiding unnecessary stress is important, as is getting enough sleep. It has to be good sleep, though, the kind of sleep where you don't wake up often during the night. Also, things that are thought of as good for the body can also be good for the brain, such as eating right and regular exercise. Even a 30-minute walk can increase blood flow to the brain.

All of this goes a long way toward improving brain health and diminishing the chances of having memory problems when you get older.

33. According to the article, which is NOT a good way to train your brain?
 (A) Closing eyes while taking a shower.
 (B) Waking up dozens of times during sleep.
 (C) Eating healthy and fresh food.
 (D) Taking a walk for half an hour with family.
34. What is the meaning of diminishing?
 (A) To become able to be seen.
 (B) To become greater and longer.
 (C) To make something happen less and less.
 (D) To make something more possible than before.
35. What is TRUE about this article?
 (A) Neurobics is a kind of sports which we play in the gym.
 (B) A stressful life may be harmful for brain health.
 (C) Doing the same tasks often will let your brain work faster and faster.
 (D) It is important to keep your brain active while sleeping.
