【A】

The first people to live in North America were Native Americans. Many years later, explorers came from Europe. An early and famous one was Christopher Columbus. In 1492, he sailed from Spain and was the captain of three ships, called the Pinta, Nina, and Santa Maria.

It was a long sailing, but he finally found a land. He didn't know he arrived in the New World: North and South America. He only thought he found a new way to India. He called the native people lived there "the Indian."

Amerigo, an Italian who worked for King of Spain, believed the land Columbus found was really a new one. After that, people named the land "America" to memorize his saying. After Columbus, many Europeans started to sail to America. They came from many countries from Europe, like Spain, Portugal, and England. By the way, explorers from Spain are the most interested of all.

Finnish schools are the best in Europe, or you can even say in the world. Finnish children spend less time in school than children in many other countries. They start school when they are seven. Their school days are short, and their vacations are long. Classrooms are open spaces. Students don't wear uniforms and the relationship between teachers and students are like friends. What's more, they have only little homework every day. Many people agree that the teachers' qualities in Finland are so high. Teachers are usually kind and not serious. They try to create many ideas of teaching. They make their students learn in different and interesting ways, and encourage students to work together.

After finishing their high school, students can also enter the university for free. It's very different from the USA. Students spend much money studying in the USA.
