Sir Isaac Newton was a great scientist. He is one of the most influential scientists of all time. He was also a key person in the scientific revolution. No other man of the 18th century understood the reasons of things so well as he. He always kept thinking. Newton learned by looking closely at things and studying hard. Although he was one of the wisest men, he thought he needed to learn about many things. Newton felt that he knew but very little.

The more Newton learned, the better he saw how much there was still to be learned. When Newton was a very old man, one day he said, "I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore. I have amused myself by now and then finding a smooth pebble or a pretty shell, but the great ocean of truth still lies before me unknown and unexplored."

Some ignorant people think they are very wise. So, they don't need to learn more. It is said that Newton was once engaged but he never married. He died in his sleep in London on March 20, 1727.

I Meant to Do My Work Today

I meant to do my work today.

But a brown bird sang in the apple tree.

And a butterfly flitted across the field,

And all the leaves were calling me.

And the wind went sighing over the land,

Tossing the grasses to and fro,

And a rainbow held out its shining hand---

So what could I do but laugh and go?

--Richard Le Gallienne (1866-1947)
