Part 2:

Every October 31st, Americans, both children and adults, celebrate Halloween by dressing in costumes and telling tales of witches and ghosts. Pumpkins are carved into shining jack-o'-lanterns. Children go from one house to another, knock on doors and call out "Trick or treat!" They hope to have their bags filled with candy. It can be a night of fun, but the history of Halloween in America has a darker side.

Hundreds of years ago, Halloween was a time to play only tricks. Some people made a lot of troubles to other people. Often, special police would have to keep no damage.

Today, many people celebrate Halloween at masquerade parties. Sometimes, people at the party vote for the best costume. Have you ever been to a Halloween party? What costume will you be wearing this year?
