【B】 When Shiao-Yu Li was 17, she was hit by a motorcycle and left paralyzed during running. However, she placed first woman overall at Ironman Japan in 2013 and 2014. How did she make it? Here is an interview with her from Slowtwitch.

ST: I read that you felt hopeless and lost the courage to live. How did you keep fighting?

Shiao-Yu: Every time I tried to move, pain would extend from my spine to my head and down to my feet, often bringing me to tears. My family don't have enough money for professional rehab, so I started my own program. I didn't want to be trapped in a broken body in a wheelchair for the rest of my life. One day I realized that if I could feel the pain, it meant my nervous system was not totally broken... If I started moving my muscles, in time there maybe I could stand again. Crying and trying to move a little became my everyday work.

ST: How did you progress?

Shiao-Yu: Little by little I began to move a bit more, and then I was able to sit up by myself. After a few months, I could put my feet on the floor. I didn't let my mom see my progress until one day I just started to walk around a little, and she was shocked...)

ST: How did you come by your motto: “As long as you are still alive, you can overcome the difficulty.”

Shiao-Yu: Because of my determination to stand and walk out of that room, and the pain I endured, this accident made me realize how much potential our minds and bodies have!

ST: What do you tell people in similar situations?

Shiao-Yu: If you want changes in your life, step out of your comfort zone. Believe in yourself instead of accepting limits placed on you by others. If I had believed my doctor, I might still be sitting in a wheelchair. Above all, don't be afraid to face pain and suffering - it will push you beyond your limits. Keep moving toward your goal and don't give up!

From Taiwan Triathlon Star Shiao-Yu Li TIMOTHY CARLSON Thu Aug 13 2015

【B】 paralyzed 癱瘓, courage 勇氣, professional rehab 專業復健, wheelchair 輪椅, nervous system 神經系統, muscles 肌肉, motto 座右銘, determination 決心, similar situations 類似情況, comfort zone 舒適區, triathlon 三鐵
